What is the Hancock Lone Palm Road, Roadway Conceptual Analysis Study?

Orange County's Transportation Planning Division has initiated a transportation improvement study that will include a high-level technical evaluation to determine potential short and long-term improvement alternatives, and recommendations for improving the existing roadway. The study will consider area traffic distribution, bicycle, and pedestrian needs, stormwater needs, and intersection improvements, including a traffic signal warrant analysis at Colonial Drive (SR 50). The study will also evaluate the extension of Hancock Lone Palm Road through the unopened road right-of-way that currently connects with Waterford Chase Parkway, including intersection improvements at Waterford Chase Parkway.

What are the project limits?

The study corridor is approximately 1.2-miles in length and includes Hancock Lone Palm Road, from Waterford Chase Parkway to East Colonial Drive (SR 50). The study area includes the general areas to the east and west of the corridor.
